

Short essay about food Date: _____

I. Read and complete the short essay with the words from the box.

octopus – earth - culture – eat – prohibited - differences

There is no country that is exactly the same as others. Every country has its own
1) _____, rules and regulations. Mexico and Pakistan are two different countries and both countries have many 2) _____ regarding food.

People of Mexico 3) _____ almost everything but in Pakistan there is concept of Halal (permitted) and Haram (forbidden). Everything on this
4) _____ is permissible, unless evidence is provided for its prohibition.
The evidence could be direct text from the Torah, about specific creatures.

For example, pigs are described as 5) _____ and unclean because they have a cloven hoof but don't chew their cud. Fish could be eaten if it had fins and scales, like salmon, carp and trout. This excluded shrimps, prawns, 6) _____, clams, crabs, lobsters, oysters, and other seafood, however people in Mexico love eating them a lot.

II. Answer the following questions.

1. What is the short essay about? _____

2. What is the author's purpose for writing the essay about Mexico and Pakistan?

3. What type of essay is it? _____
4. Who is the intended audience of the short essay? _____
5. In Pakistan, what concept does it mean prohibition? _____
6. What mammal is prohibited to eat by Islamic law? _____
7. What fish do Pakistanis eat? _____
8. What seafood is not allowed for eating in Pakistan? _____

Short essay about food Date: _____

I. Read and complete the short essay with the words from the box.

octopus – earth - culture – eat – prohibited - differences

There is no country that is exactly the same as others. Every country has its own
1) _____, rules and regulations. Mexico and Pakistan are two different countries and both countries have many 2) _____ regarding food.

People of Mexico 3) _____ almost everything but in Pakistan there is concept of Halal (permitted) and Haram (forbidden). Everything on this
4) _____ is permissible, unless evidence is provided for its prohibition.
The evidence could be direct text from the Torah, about specific creatures.

For example, pigs are described as 5) _____ and unclean because they have a cloven hoof but don't chew their cud. Fish could be eaten if it had fins and scales,
like salmon, carp and trout. This excluded shrimps, prawns, 6) _____, clams, crabs, lobsters, oysters, and other seafood, however people in Mexico love eating
them a lot.

II. Answer the following questions.

1. What is the short essay about? _____

2. What is the author's purpose for writing the essay about Mexico and Pakistan?

3. What type of essay is it? _____
4. Who is the intended audience of the short essay? _____
5. In Pakistan, what concept does it mean prohibition? _____
6. What mammal is prohibited to eat by Islamic law? _____
7. What fish do Pakistanis eat? _____
8. What seafood is not allowed for eating in Pakistan? _____
